

“Potenciar el Cambio: Creating Interconnection in Healthcare to Create Change”

#LMSA2021N&WR

LMSA is pleased to announce this call of submissions for abstracts to our 2021 National and West Regional Conference Research Symposium. The 2021 LMSA National and West Regional Research Symposium will be held:

Date: March 13, 2021

Location: Webex Meetings or personal virtual platform

Our symposium is an opportunity to highlight research/programs with an aim to promote health by addressing the differences in the presence of disease, health outcomes and quality of and/or access to health care across all population groups (e.g. race/ethnicity, social class, gender, health status, language spoken).

Participants do not have to be affiliated with the Oregon Health & Science University or UC Irvine School of Medicine in order to participate. Anyone interested in presenting their research/program, in networking and expanding their scientific and professional knowledge while promoting health equity are encouraged to participate. We welcome submissions from all disciplines and levels including high school students, pre-meds, healthcare professionals, graduate students, or professional students such as medical, osteopathic and allied health students.

Call for Submissions

Abstracts may be from the following disciplines: Basic Science, Clinical Science, Community Service, Health Policy & Advocacy and Social/Behavioral Sciences & Public Health. Abstracts must be submitted electronically and should not include tables, figures, or references. Abstracts should not exceed word limits.

Research/Clinical Abstracts (Word Limit: 500 words)

Structured abstracts are required and should include four headings: Background, Methods, Results and Conclusions.

1. Background: Discuss the importance of the topic and study objectives
2. Methods: Provide a description of the setting, target population, study design, sampling techniques, measures, and statistical analyses
3. Results: Summarize outcomes in detail. Clinically focused abstracts may also include barriers encountered translating evidence to practice
4. Conclusions: Provide brief overview of implications for research, practice, and/or policy

Selection Process

Submissions will undergo peer review by the symposium’s scientific committee. We are accepting up to 50 abstracts.

Abstracts Submission Deadline: January 9th, 2021 by 11:59PM PT

Abstract Acceptance Notification: Presenters notified via email on or before January 23, 2021.

Online Voice Over: due February 13, 2021

Further Information

Posters of abstracts will be accepted via presentations on software of presenter’s choice, such as PowerPoint, in “Better Poster” format, which will be graded for selection. If selected, voice over presentations will be scored for awards and distributed to attendees for viewing before the conference date. Despite the pre-recorded nature of this symposium, presenters are still expected to participate in a live Q&A session the day of the symposium; presenters will be provided with a Cisco Webex Meetings link for individual breakout rooms for the Q&A.
